Gold Award FCB Health and Gilenya Hey MS, Take This!

"This is one of the best campaigns I've seen across multiple categories," one judge said of this DTC campaign for Novartis's Gilenya, which treats relapsing forms of multiple sclerosis (MS).

Another judge praised the "fun and exciting creative" that reaches and engages its audience.

"The brand pursued a more aggressive DTC campaign, with a meaningful community engagement platform across social, digital, and offline channels to disrupt the notion that people had little choice when it came to their MS therapy," one agency representative noted.

This campaign is rooted in deep understanding of the patients it targets and reflects their independence, tenacity and courage. Patients are given multiple ways in which to share their own voices, including in videos, on social media channels and in other website content.

Search, mobile, digital display, print and in-office ads also drove messaging. Print ads extended to mainstream consumer outlets such as People and Shape.

According to the agency, results included "incredible incremental lifts across all KPIs." Judges were impressed that a reported 90% of Facebook posts are shared.

"Awesome creative across channels," a third judge said. "Amazing social and digital work and results."

CDMiConnect and Genentech "Act FAST" Unbranded Stroke Awareness Campaign from Genentech

IS WOMAN IS HAVING A ST

This campaign shows people having a stroke and lists symptoms under the acronym "FAST" to convey the importance of quickly calling 911.

Nine months post-launch, stroke victims who arrived at a hospital in time for optimal treatment jumped 25%.

Judges praised the "standout creative" and "amazing results."
